Over the last eight years she and her husband have had ten different foster children in their home, three of which they have adopted. Over the past several years she has counseled numerous other families through the process to get their certification and begin adoption processes. She has a Bachelors degree in sociology from UCSD, and a RN degree, having specialized in pediatrics. Carolyn and her family moved to the San Gabriel valley last year. She is currently going through the process to become a certified foster parent for Los Angeles County.

The FBI is working with its partners--private sector companies, regulatory agencies, and other law enforcement organizations--to curb identity fraud. But you can help us--and more importantly, help yourself--by taking some basic preventative steps.
